POLLUTION FEAR KILLS SST PLAN

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — There was little room for further argument today about the American supersonic transport airliner following a 58-to-37 Senate vote to bury the Boeing project.

"I really think it is dead now," said the SST's arch-opponent, Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) after the late-night roll-call vote Wednesday.

Proxmire said the only way the United States could get back into the commercial supersonic field would be if there were positive proof that the SST would not pollute the air and if the plane were to be developed by private financing.

Greene Rejects Long-Term Energy Trading

MONTREAL (CP) - Energy Minister J. J. Greene told a group of American oilmen Wednesday that Canada intends to use its natural resources primarily for its own good and expects its trading partners to open their doors to more finished products manufactured in this country.

Mr. Greene told the spring meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's marketing division that foreign interest in Canada's resource industries has helped the country grow but long-term energy trading commitments with the U.S. which might have unpredictable results should be avoided.

Consequences Must Be Known

"There is no place in Canada-U.S. energy relations to a ding arrangements mitments too far in advance of our ability to predict their consequences to the Canadian economy and, therefore, to

Foreign Investment Benefit

Mr. Greene emphasized that the government is not afraid of foreign investment which, he said, has contributed to Canada's greenting. Canada's growth.

"Governments—both provincial and federal—have been accused of everything from the outright giveaway of our birthright to allowing foreign domination of our resource industries to permitting the wholesale export of raw materials instead of developing further processing industries at home. tries at home.

American and Soviet ne-gotiators at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks have decided first to seek accord on anti-ballistic missiles before tackling the complex matter of limiting offensive weapons, a statement broad-cast in the Soviet Union said.

From Washington, Nixon told a television-radio audience "this agreement is a major step in breaking the stalemate on nuclear arms

Nixon's short announcement -timed with a similar one issued by Moscow-gave no details on what breakthrough he anticipated in the U.S.-Soviet talks which got under way in the fail of 1969.

The major U.S.-Soviet dis-armament negotiations have been stalemated over a Soviet proposal to go ahead with a deal just to curb anti-ballistic missiles. The United States has been contending that an agreement s hould include both offensive weapons such as intercontinental ballistic missiles and anti-ballistic missiles in the same package

Leaders Try To Revive Old Alliance

Minister Heath and President Pompidou met today in an attempt to revive the old British - French alliance in order that France will not again veto Britain's application to join the European Common Market.

Showdown for Everyone

shame for rest home operators, and for the provincial government department which Mr. Gaglardi is supposed to head, in the present situation which finds elderly and helpless men and women used as pawns in a power play. It is Greater Victoria's disgrace, too, that such people should be threatened with the hardship and the indignity of being "dumped on the hospital lawn", sheltered in hospital lobbies and hallways, and generally treated as unwanted nuisances who have overstaved their time on earth.

This confrontation is particularly obnoxious in that it has arisen as the result of financial claims on the one hand and the public posturing and heavy-handed edicts of Mr. Gaglardi on the other. The controversy has been conducted, even where the participants met together, in the manner of longdistance shelling. It should never have been permitted to reach the present threat of desperate eviction which the rest home proprietors claim is their only recourse to escape an unjust financial burden.

Both sides should immediately be

THERE CAN BE NOTHING BUT required to prove their case in public with audited figures. Facts would take the place of assertions and the matter could be quickly resolved. The government's plan to place elderly people in large institutions is not the best solution. It is more of a desperate effort to cope with statistics rather than with men and women.

> Mr. Gaglardi has given no leadership in the situation. There is no adequate long range program for housing needy elderly folk. There is no reason why the rest home operators should personally have to carry the burden of welfare deficits, if there really are any, and it is equally inequitable to expect financially independent residents of the homes to pay extra in order to provide for those who cannot.

The whole unhappy system, both as to financing and standards, must be laid at the door of a government department which has not fully met a modern responsibility that has clearly been mounting for years. Foot-dragging is footdragging no matter how pompously

COMPUTERS HAVE BEEN PUT to many uses and predictions of their ultimate effect on the human race vary from benign to malign. But the use to which computers are being put at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor under the direction of Dr. J. David Singer, a political scientist, must be viewed with hopeful puzzlement. Dr. Singer and a number of others, including Dr. Michael Wallace of UBC, are engaged in a project to develop an "applied science of war prevention" or the "correlates of war" project.

The Singer group is attempting to arrive at the causes of war and, conversely, what prevents war. Its studies involve placing the factors surrounding war into two general variables - ecological and behavioral. Ecological variables include alliances, international alliances, trade, etc. while behavioral variables include diplomacy, military and economic moves and counter-moves. What the group is trying to deduce is a formula for preserving peace. All the factors in the wars being studied are given numbers and will be fed into com-

If the Singer group is successful it will also have arrived at a solution of the ancient problem of the "inevitability" of events and, not least, the problem of man's free will. The attempt to turn human events into mathematical form has a frightening aspect, but if it succeeds, the potential benefits in this case can hardly be gainsaid.

THE CYNIC, OR PRAGMATIST. may view the victory of Montreal's Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final as proof that the metropolis hired more top-flight Canadian professional hockey players than did Chicago, The cynic may also note that the winners' quarter-final, semi-final and final series fell only one game short of the maximumthereby guaranteeing almost the highest gate receipts possible.

In far different tone, Canadian sentimentalists will hail the return of the premier trophy to a Canadian city as a triumph for nationalism: the cup is back where it belongs.

However the event is judged as a business promotion in the superiority in Canada's game - the finals must also be hailed as a magnificent event displaying hockey and competitive spirit at its best. The drama of a season-long quest for the Stanley Cup eventually narrowed down to a decision reached in the last 20 minutes of play, and the measure between victory and defeat was a single goal. That's hockey.

Whether the fan is a business man concerned only with returns, or a sports buff interested only in competition, and a good show, he can judge the series as a classic. predictably futile. His meetings in Alberta were sparsely attended and if he got any encouragement whatever from Premier Harry Strom it is the bestkept political secret of 1971. The last thing Alberta Socreds are interested in is Social Credit, either as an economic theory or a national political movement.

Like all other political parties, Socred terest begins, and ends, with getting into power and staying in power. Major H. Douglas' easy solution for the ills - currency inflation longer catches votes in Alberta. Ergo forget that nonsense and get with ideas

What issues catch votes in Alberta? Edgar Benson. He, and widespread alienation with Prime Minister Trudeau's re-occupation with changing the consti-tution and seeming disinterest in gut issues like the agricultural crisis and employment.

Old Targets

Consider, for example, what a 1935 Aberhart, or even a 1940 Manning, would have done with these developments:

There has been a wholesale tightening up of cheque cashing procedures by the chartered banks. The change arises in the main from increased mail box thefts and banking rules which make the girl cashiers responsible for losses sustained from forged or N.S.F. cheques. The main sufferers from the new stringency are the old folks - the old-age pensioners for example who do not have bank accounts and are having great difficulty cashing government cheques.

As the small print notes, all government cheques are cashable at any branch of the chartered banks of Canada. It does not say "if you have an count at the branch where the cheque is being presented." Without such an account, the banks are refusing to cash

Reading your letters in the paper I noted what Rufus Henderson Stevens of Redondo Beach, California, said about litter here and how clean it was where he came from. Well, I disagree very much with him. My husband and I lived in California all the way from Redondo Beach, San Francisco, San Joaquin Valley to Redding and California is noted for the litter on the highways - more than most states. > Thus, the policy of preventive detention - holding persons who had not been charged with any crime, and against whom no crime could be charged because no arrest records had been - was a double blow to constitutional rights. Not only were citizens incarcerated illegally (frequently under miserable and dangerous conditions); but they were so treated in order that the government could prevent any further demonstrations of dissent against government policy, even though it could not be certainly known that any such demonstration would be unlawful or

Deliberate Policy

Anyhody who doubts that this was the deliberate policy of the Nixon Administration will have to explain the more days the last following astounding fact. When Judge Harold Greene ruled on Tuesday that persons arrested Monday morning would place and the comhave to be charged with a crime or released by 8 a.m. Wednesday - which gave the government about 48 hours to act — government attorneys actually appealed the ruling, obviously in vain. That is not an accusation by their political opponents or an irresponsible charge by the hobgoblins Vice-President Agnew sees in the press: it is a proud boast by the attorney-general. He told the California Peace Officers' Association that "Washington's decisive opposition to mob force will set an example for other communities." And this, he said, was a view "fully shared by the President of the United States," a lawyer who has been admitted to practise before the Supreme Court.

The tough policy followed against the Mayday demonstrators might have been defended, however speciously, on grounds of unavoidable necessity sorrow rather than in exultation, and without any boasts of victory. But Mr. Mitchell not only urged the same course on others; he insisted that the police actions here "protected the rights of their fellow citizens.'

Illegal

In the face of the indisputable evidence of improper mass arrests and illegal preventive detention, this can only refer to the rights of federal workers trying to get to their jobs, and of other non-demonstrating citizens. Of course those rights are real and inalienable what guarantee is there that they will remain so if the government is as willing and able to set aside the equally it showed itself to be during the Mayday

That is the gravest question arising from a policy based on the notion that the rights of some Americans can be protected only by violating the rights of some other Americans. Sadly enough that policy also raises the question her in the America of Mr. and Mr. Mitchell there are not already two classes of citizens' rights - one for the non-protester going about his work, and another for the dissident engaging in demonstrations or civil disobedience. (C) 1971 The New York Times News Service

Intelligence tells each side a great deal about what the other is doing. But it tells little about what is in the other fellow's mind, that is, about his intentions. Herein lies the problem.

There is no doubt that since the time of Nikita Khrushchev's ouster in 1964 the Kremlin has been building up its long-inferior nuclear force to what today is rough parity. There is no such thing as exact parity because the two nations are differently situated geographically and thus have different require-never again suffer the humiliation that Khrushchev had to endure when he was forced to back out of Cuba in the 1962 missile crisis.

The real question facing Washington today is dual: Are the Soviets going not just for parity but for superiority? And, if they are, with what intention? The Alsop brothers, Jackson, Foster and Laird in one way or another assumed the answer to the first part of the question is "yes," and that the intention is either to launch a first-strike at the United States or to blackmail America in some future inter

President Nixon has not publicly Wrawn either conclusion, but it is evident that he is deeply suspicious that either or both could be true. Nor is this a new thought. In his first foreign policy report, issued on Feb. 18, 1970, Nixon, nuclear "superiority," ac-"sufficiency"

That is the only time in history that the United States has openly threatened a nuclear holocaust on the USSR and at that time, as members of the Nixon administration have repeatedly recalled, the Soviets had less than 70 long-range missiles, all of them above ground and highly vulnerable.

The alarmists today fear that table is being completely turned so that in some future crisis it will be Moscow that threatens to rain nuclear fire on the U.S., thereby forcing submission to Soviet demands as Kennedy was able to do less than nine years ago the

The unhappy fact today is that it is close to impossible to have a rational national debate on American defense policy, so pervasive is the Indochina war issue and its

'His Gift Is for Self-Delusion'

Harold Wilson, then British prime minister, was worried that President Johnson might 'give way to the hawks" and escalate the war in Vietnam. So Wilson says in his memoirs. He therefore telephoned Political memoirs may often raise questions about the character of their author, but Wilson's are in a special category. He must be the first active politician, still seeking the highest office, to lay out in print the qualities that make it impossible for others

When things go wrong, in Harold Wilson's world, it is always somebody else's fault.

The foreign office wrecked all his good work for Anglonch relations by leaking version of General de Gaulle's suggestion, to am-bassador Christopher Soames in 1968, for a new association outside the Common Market. His televised assurance after devaulation that it would not affect "the pound in your pocket" for which he was much mocked was really not his idea at all; he took the phrase from a draft prepared by treasury civil Sometimes the dignity is missing. Evidently the prime minister has decided it is time to use the language of the people.

Thus, in conversations with Lyndon Johnson, the Spaniards are referred to as "a lot of bloody fascists." The Vietnam peace effort may have gone wrong, Wilson writes in arch paraphrase, because 'the authorities in Washington were suffering from a degree of confusion about possible juxtaposition of certain parts of their anatomy, one of which was their

He tells us he was worried about the possibility of esca-lation in Vietnam. But when it occurred, he said nothing. Over the years of American bombing he only once mildly demurred at its destruction of influence American opinion by ending British support of U.S. The Wilson memoirs are seen in Britain as raising a question of propriety. He is still leader of the Labor Party. If he should become minister again, it is asked, how could civil servforeign statesmen work easily with him when they knew that they might shortly be publicly described as fools or boors or fascists?

But the larger question is one of principle. The memoirs will deepen the skepticism about Harold Wilson, the long-held doubts that he has any real beliefs. And it happens that the charge of opportun-ism so often laid against him may soon have a decisive test

Ho Hum-They're Off and Running

Will somebody please turn off the 1972 presidential election campaign? The thing has been calling for attention ever since January when Senator McGovern announced that he was a candidate, and now the papers and tube are already filling with those displays of happily exposed leeth which, along with the visa to Israel and an appointment with the chief commissar in Moscow, identify candidates for the presidency of the United States.

We don't want to deal with them right now. It is much too early. The election is still a year and a half away. Having these fellows show us their teeth this early is like having a broken alarm clock which, set for 7 p.m., goes off at 2:30 in the morning.

Unless it is shut off, we are all going to be immersed in presidential politics for 18 long months. And for what? For

* * *

The form sheet points to an anticlimax in which the 1968 campaign will be rerun. Nixon vs. Humphrey-Muskie, or Nixon vs. Muskie-Humphrey, with George Wallace carrying the Swamp Belt,

Who wants to get up a year and a half early for this?

All this, of course, is the routine grumbling of a man forced to crawl out and face reality. Feet on the floor in the gray dawn of early presidential campign, he comes slowly awake, and in those valuable moments when his mind still operates well, between sleep and start of the day's work which will se it down, he sees things with unusual clarity.

It is obvious, for example, that the rm bet — Nixon vs. Humphrey or Muskie - is the poorest bet of all.

By RUSSELL BAKER

Nixon, almost certainly, will not run in

Yes, that much is suddenly obvious to the dawn-clear brain. Nixon's great pleasure in life comes from running for office. When elected, as he was in 1968, office. When elected, as he was in 1300, he immediately begins running again.

In two years and five months as president, he has spent all but three minutes and 39 seconds running for reelection. (Those three minutes and 39 seconds were spent getting the 1968 election returns framed to be hung in his den.)

Now, standing here before the mirror, putting shaving cream on the cheeks, certain inevitabilities are clear. For example: If Nixon runs in 1972, and wins, he will no longer have anything to look forward to. The two-term limit would mean that he could never run for president again.

What would be do with himself during that second four-year term? Well, he could govern, of course, but he does not seem the sort of man who would have much zest for governing once they told him he could never run

If, on the other hand, he were to withdraw in 1972, he would still be eligible for another run in 1976, or 1980, or even 1984. As long as he doesn't get elected again, he will keep running until the last ounce of pleasure goes out of Almost certainly then, the Republican candidate will not be Nixon. The Democratic situation is more urky, even as the first whisker falls. In the first place, it is obvious that none of the men now known as presidential candidates can possibly be nominated. This rules out Senators McGovern, Muskie, Humphrey, Bayh, Jackson, Kennedy and perhaps two or three others. There are so many of these fellows running that it is difficult to remember them all here in the grim dawn but by noon we will know them all too well. The chief handicap under which all of them labor is that there is no persuasive reason to believe any of them will make a much better president than, say, your Uncle Fred, or if your Uncle Fred is really a loser—

This is not the reason, however, that they are unlikely to be nominated. They are unlikely to be nominated for the more primitive reason that we, having heen introduced to them this far before election day, are going to be sick and tired of them before the nominating convention meets.

In a wave of fatigue, the convention will have no alternative but to nominate someone superbly qualified to govern the country. Senator Mansfield, per-haps. Walter Cronkite.

The Democratic platform will undoubtedly call for winding up the Vietnam war, and this will almost certainly enrage Lyndon Johnson who never forget it for a moment — is still constitutionally eligible for another term. The Republican convention will find it hard to resist him. ("Anything to nnd it hard to resist him. ("Anything to save us from Nelson Rockefeller," Senator Goldwater will explain.) Now, for vice-presidential candi-dates, either John Wayne or Abbie

Hoffman would make a Can't anybody turn the thing off?

The minister said the right of people to obtain nursing home care in privately maintained centres would not be affected by his proposal.

Under the plan, currently in effect in B.C. mental hospitals, the government has the right to recover costs of care from estates of persons where no dependents require the Loffmark said he has written to federal Health Minister John Munro seeking approval for introduction of the plan for extended care hospitals.

STAGGERS' HIM Scott Wallace (SC-Oak Bay) said the proposal "stag-Bay) said the proposal stag-gers" him and added that the proposed "post-mortem tax" would do nothing to counter his arguments that the government does nothing to provide care for the elderly unless they are on welfare.

. Wallace said the same method of financing hospital care should apply through all levels of care including acute, intermediate and extended Loffmark said extension of the after-death payment prin-ciple to extended care hospitals and intermediate care nursing homes wouldn't require the government to "freeze" estates of elderly patients. But any transfers of funds from such estates could mean the government would regard the beneficiaries as responsible for the costs of the care or some portion of it, he said.

The minister had said earlier that his proposal would counter Wallace's criticism that the government doesn't help the elderly except those on welfare.

Take Him Home To Mother-in-Law

By IAN HAMILTON

Mr. Voice Box is one man you'd just love to take home to the mother-in-law.

Rich Little, the impersonator appearing today at the Memorial Arena, has more comebacks than a guy-with a permanent case of hiccups.
Attempting to a s k him straight questions Wednesday at a press conference after his afternoon performance was like trying to play golf in a closet.

Unfortunately for Rich Little fans, the man of 140 voices is a hard talent to gauge at the Jaycee Fair show because of acoustical problems in the arena.

TIP READING?

Little is the first man to point out that fact, admitting that the audience should "try reading my lips if they can't

In point of fact, the performer himself says he can't often hear what his straight man is saying as the latter feeds him lines.

Even the acoustics in the arena, however, shouldn't cause you to pass up a chance to see this Ottawa-born talent in action. Perhaps the best impressionist in the business, he just manages to outshine the technical difficulties.

"It's great to star here."

"It's great to star here," said Little, with reference to the press conference. "With that domed room (the arena), it's really scary.

WIN THE WAR

And star he did. The conference was a floor show Laugh-In with reporters for straight men. Have you ever been sued?

"No, but I keep hoping."

elsewhere.

Born a Canadian (he plans on staying that way), he got his big start in the United States after whistle-stops in Canada gave him some measure of fame.

He's been on every talk show in the States but the kiddie cartoon variety and says he wouldn't mind giving them a whirl too because they pay so well. It's just that he's on the road too much.

With voungsters in mind the biggest ,hit with the balloontoting set during the kidflies day show was a fantastic Donald Duck sneeze. He also includes the voices of Robert Goulet and John Wayne and you don't have to look too hard to recognize the Diefen-baker shake, the Kirk

Of his political figure impersonations, Americans laugh harder at Diefenbaker than Canadians do, simply because they can't believe that "this owl is really a political leader."

PLAYS ROLE OF NIXON Although he says he isn't all that interested in politics, he's that interested in pointes, he's just finished a movie with Tommy Smothers called Another Nice Mess, to be released by the end of the summer. In it, -he- plays Richard Nixon in a Laurel and Hart, manuer. and Hardy manner.

After tonight's show at 10 p.m. the impersonator opens in the Sands Hotel in Vegas on Saturday, follows this with a Lucy Show, some rest, and a return to Canada to work up one of the most rugged 1,116 cc. engines ever made. The chref designer was Aurelio Lampredi. who designed engines for Ferrari when Ferrari was at the top of the Grand Prix circuit.

This little powerhouse accelerates fast, has lots of torque at low speeds, and can drive full out hour after hour. It's all in the design. Such things as a cam and Weber carburetor. Then we added independent four-wheel suspension, based on the simple MacPherson strut principle plus anti-roll bar. This new suspension, combined with the front wheel drive, and rackand-pinion steering, lets the new Fiat 128 take corners ten miles an hour faster than it ought to.

And still tuck in and hold you

Government Rejects War Act Probe

Minister John Turner made it clear Wednesday that the gov-ernment has no intention of providing a forum for opposition members to criticize its actividuring the Quebec crisis

The Commons debated a gov ernment motion to set up a joint House-Senate committee to con-sider replacement legislation the Public Order (Tempo rary Measures) Act, 1970, which expired April 30.

Mr. Turner said the govern ment would not support an amendment offered last Thurs-day by Eldon Woolliams (PC-Calgary North) to have the committee report first on the circumstances surrounding the Oct. 16 proclamation of the War Measures Act.

He said the amendment was not designed to ascertain what emergency legislation may be needed in the future, but was designed to appraise what had been done in the past.

He asked whether it would not turn the committee proceedings into a "partisan, political exer-cise, possibly acrimonious."

ution asking the British Colum bia government to repeal its recent act banning tobacco and alcohol advertising in this province will be put to delegates attending the annual meeting of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce at Kelowna, B.C., June 6, 7

The resolution from the West Vancouver Chamber of Commerce says the ban would cost B.C. publications $3 million a year and claims that it discriminates against B.C. printing establishments because outside publications carrying the adver tisements would be permitted to circulate in the province.

Panama Booze Not Scotch

CHICAGO (Reuter) - Scotch and snuffed out a challenge from a brew produced in Pan-ama which was sold under the impressive sounding title House of Stuart.

Federal Judge William J. Lynch ordered a Chicago com-pany to stop labelling its Pana-manian-made I i q u o r "scotch whisky." The product is made of Panamanian cane spirits in stead of Scottish grain spirits.

Judge Lynch issued an injun tion sought by the Scotch Whisky Association, James Bu-chanan and Co. and Justerini and Brook Ltd., against the Barton Distilling Co., which he said had violated U.S. trade-merk laws.

Mr. Turner said he was not suggesting that the committee should not look at the history of terrorism and violent confrontation in Canada.

The committee and its chairman we ould have discretion under the resolution.

As with all parliamentary committees, however, the majority of members will be from the government.

The committee should also look at the social factors that contributed to violence, instead of taking Mr. Trudeau's approach of responding to the causes of discontent only with repressive laws.

two days after a pet had to go because of a mobile home park owner's new regulation against pets, local works and services committee of the Captial Regional District was told Wednesday. Langford director Earl Pallister said the owner of the mobile home, who had occupied space in the park for two years, was told to "get out or get rid of the (two) pets.'

But the man was hampered in moving because of regula-tions on mobile homes and he was offered a price which meant a $4,000 loss, he said.

He sought approval of a recommendation that mobile nomes in mobile home parks be exempted from the National Building Code, but later changed this to request a report by engineer Bill Gerry for the next board meeting next week.

Pallister said a year ago the regional district accepted the National Building Code which meant 99.9 per cent of 600 mobile homes became non

Outfall Test In Progress

Tests are being run by the pumping station at the new Macaulay Point sewerage out-fall in Esquimalt.

Capital Regional District engineer Bill Gerry said today the tests are using ordinary water and sewage.

He said the district is "trying to work up a good target date again now" for completion and operation of the entire system, which was to have started in May but has been delayed because of equipment deliveries and some construction problems.

Asked if the new outfall can

Richard 'Very Sorry' and Would Welcome MacNeil Back

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'll be very disappointed if Al MacNeil is not my coach when we go to camp this fall . . .

I mean that. Those were the remorseful words Wednesday of Henri

After the Habs were defeated 2-0 by Chicago Black Hawks in the fifth game of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup series, Henri told some French-language reporters that MacNeil was an "incompetent coach , , , the worst coach I had ever played for."

And now he's sorry, very sorry.

"Let me say, for once and for all, exactly what I meant and what I believe," Richard said.

"Worst coach...incompetent, I said that, right? I never

"I'll never change my mind about that game. It was a terrible coaching job. That was one game, I've had terrible

"Every coach has a terrible night, every player a terrible ne but one game doesn't condemn a man." Richard went on to say that MacNeil was exactly the opposite of incompetent.

"He's a rookie so he makes mistakes just like I did when I was a rookie," he said. 'When he was bad I said so. When I've been bad, they've so. Well, maybe not all the time. That's why I should have said nothing."

Richard tendered his apologetic-sounding views after Montrealers by the thousands turned out to honor the champions during a parade that literally became a mob scene.

On St. Catherine Street, four-lanes wide, enthusiastic well-wishers stood up to 20 deep and closed in on the convertibles carrying the bockey players to shake their hands and shout carrying the hockey players to shake their hands and shout The motorcade moved at a snail's pace in 85-degree shirtsleeve weather.

The parade was Montreal's thank-you to the team which brought home the Stanley Cup, symbol of National Hockey League supremecy by edging Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, Tuesday night.

A police motorcycle escort led the parade and forced the spectators back, but the crowds surged forward again around the vehicles led by a convertible carrying the Stanley Cup

Some youngsters pulled off the players' name cards tied to the sides of the convertibles.

"Boy, have I got a souvenir," one small boy shouted.

At Phillips Square, about half-way through the parade

route which led from the Forum in west-end midtown to city hall near the financial district, employees of a department store showered confetti and flowers on the players.

From a bank, 50-foot streamers flapped in the wind, hailing the champions. Mini-skirts and hot pants in the crowds added to the color. Motorists abandoned their cars in traffic jams and joined

Mayor Jean Drapeau greeted the players at city hall. He had announced the parade just hours after the Canadiens won the best-of-seven final playoff series in Chicago.

Offical congratulations also came from Quebec City and Premier Robert Bourassa sent a telegram of congratulations to Beliveau, and in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp brought on applause from all quarters when he welcomed "the great victory of the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup,"

It's a curious thing, but the guy who put the knock on the coach, now turns out to be the hero of the piece. One of them. Because now he has made the coach a celebrity as well.

Last week, Henri Richard of the Montreal Canadiens was perhaps the most resented star outside of the province of Quebec. In a moment of pique, he had labelled his coach, Al MacNeil as "Incompetent — the worst he had ever played

Tuesday night. Richard threw two goals at Chicago Black Hawks as the Canadiens won their 10th Stanley Cup in the last 15 years. Because of those two goals, MacNeil, a rookie coach, had won hockey's biggest prize in his first year behind

Today, if the issue lies dormant, it is only because the overtones of final victory won't let it come to the surface. Besides, there was another central figure in the Montreal win over Chicago. Ken Dryden, that giant rookie goalkeeper, is generally credited with being the difference between the two teams. Certainly he was against Boston, and he was superb again on Tuesday in Chicago.

But there is never a quiet crisis insofar as hockey is concerned in Montreal. And the Richard-MacNeil confrontation is no exception. This time, however the emotional impact of Richard's charges reached far beyond the bounds of nationalism. People across the country started taking sides. nationalism. People across the country started taking sides, and asking questions.

Hadn't MacNeil taken over in mid season from a reluctant Claude Ruel? Hadn't the Canadiens just as suddenly started to jell? Hadn't the Canadiens the second pest record, started to jell? Hadn't the Canadiens the second heat record, behind Boston, in the last half of the season? Hadn't MacNeil made the decision to use Dryden, a rookie, against the greatest scoring team in hockey? Hadn't Dryden justified MacNeil's faith in him? Hadn't the Canadiens beaten Boston? And why should Richard, regardless of his intentions, put what appeared to be a bum rap on a good guy?

True, MacNeil was only considered a stop-gap replacement when Ruel, who never once wanted the job, got out. After all, this wasn't a position for an Anglo-type. Otherwise, Floyd "Busher" Curry would have gotten it when Toe Blake retired. Curry was a 10-year Montreal veteran, and Otherwise, Floyd "Busher" Curry would have gotten it when Toe Blake retired. Curry was a 10-year Montreal veteran, and a proven coach in the American League. But he lacked one credential. He wasn't French. Enter Ruel, a junior development man. And a good one. He was appointed to a position he didn't relish.

And if Ruel won a Stanley Cup for Montreal, in spite of himself, in 1969, that's the very same charge that may be laid on MacNeil today. Because there always is a built-in excusse at management level. If the club loses, the coach is at fault. If it wins ... well, that's the idea isn't it? fault. If it wins ... well, that's the idea isn't it?

Actually, there is little a coach can do once the team steps on the ice. He can't put the puck in the net. But if teams didn't need coaches, the owners wouldn't hire them. And if MacNeil isn't liked, which appears possible, why should he care? He wasn't hired to win a popularity contest. Besides, last year, the Canadiens didn't even make the

When Richard made his charge, he obviously was upset. He hadn't played much in the third period of the game won by Chicago, 2-0. And he spouted off. The next day, everyone was predicting that, win or lose, MacNeill was long gone.

Richard had put the kiss of death on his boss.

MacNeil, for his part, put it down to playoff excitement and tension. "Some people are more highly strung than " he said.

others," he said.

After the series, Richard was apologetic. He was man enough to say he shouldn't have said what he did. But if he was rising above his label as a malcontent, he also had stimulated his club. He lit whatever fuse needed lighting. And then he scored those two vital goals - the tying and the

The last one was truly the work of a professional. Which is the way it all should be remembered: and except for what went before, it would have.

Meanwhile, because of the Stanley Cup victory, things may be more comfortable now for MacNeil in Montreal.

After all, he has done nothing to be ashamed of. Besides, it is virtually impossible to do much better. In only half a

A varied catch in the creel this week

Continued concern and presure by sportsmen over the annual closures of portions of streams to all angling in order to protect spawning runs of salmon has finally precipitated a precedent on one up-Island river.

Through the initiative and efforts of area fisheries officer Bill Webber the annual closure of the Courtenay River to all angling now permits fly fishing from the shingle mill upstream to the confluence of the Puntledge and the Tsolum major sports fishery for sea-run cutthroat trout at a peak angling period coinciding with the salmon runs.

Permitting fly angling instead of a complete closure is a precedent for the federal department of fisheries and one which hopefully will be followed by other similar regulations on other streams which also have a season full closure. Let us hope that it will also precipitate similar regulations by the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

No specific tackle definition has been defined other than conventional fly fishing tackle. To all anglers this should be sufficient. Concern has been expressed by Webber for the very limited spring chinook population which uses the Courtenay River and the sincere hope that this angling opportunity will not be abused.

A recent release from Dr. James Hatter, director of the fish and wildlife branch, states that, "People adopting young wildlife this spring may find themselves liable to prosecution for illegal possession under the Wildlife Act."

This "hands-off" newly born and young wildlife policy is a result of increasing" adoption" by well-meaning individuals who mistakenly believe these young seemingly helpless creatures to be abandoned. This is not so for the mother is lways nearby and will return if the young animals are not

"They are fine to watch," states Hatter, "BUT PLEASE, do yourself and wildlife a favor, and don't touch them. * * *

The May issue of "Western Fish and Game" magazine The May issue of "Western Fish and Came" magazine, now available on newsstands, has two excellent articles of real interest to Vancouver Island sportsmen. Dean Dixon's article, "Vancouver Island's Disappearing Elk," gives a complete and obviously well-researched history of the Roosevelt elk on the Island. His concluding prediction of future elk hunting on a permit basis is one management tool which unfortunately the fish and wildlife branch has been reluctant to provide in the 1971 blanket closure to Island elk

Vancouver Island's regional wildlife biologist, Ian Smith, has an article on "Know How: deer vs. hunter," which provides a wealth of information for the hunter on deer populations. Drawing upon research in the Northwest Bay area north of Nanaimo, he cites many examples of the whys of Vancouver Island deer regulations.

"Every litter bit hurts," or "Where litter lies beauty dies," the slogan for Outdoors Unlittered, a concerned B.C. citizens' organization founded in Victoria, could certainly be applied to our national parks. Last summer litter clean-up alone cost the taxpayers over $2 million.

Concern expressed by the organization points out the human fallibility to the litter problem. "It's the first piece of litter in an area that has the worst effect, for one piece of litter invites more.'8'

New pressures by an "awakened conservation-conscious public." to quote J. J. Buchanan, MP and parliamentary secretary to the Honbrable Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern-development, has given rise to a new zoning policy for all of Canada's national parks. Five classes, as listed below, have been suggested, particularly as the "national parks are seen as non-renewable resources, treasures to be carefully guarded."

Class 1. "Special Areas". Vehicles are not permitted. In some sections there will be no visible access, to protect either some sections there will be no visible access, to protect either a unique ecological area and special historical or cultural features. Per cent of park area—15.

Class 2. "Wilderness Recreation Areas"—Access by any type of motor vehicle is not permitted. Riding and hiking trails, primitive campgrounds and wildlife habitat are typical features. Per cent of park area—40-50.

Class 3. "Natural environment areas"—The huffer of features. Per cent of park area—40-50.

Class 3. "Natural environment areas" — The buffer or land bank zone with minor access roads to particular park features. Per cent of park area—30-40.

Class 4. "General outdoor recreation areas"—includes highways corridors, roads, campgrounds, viewpoints and other activity areas. Per cent of park area—5.

Class 5. "Townsite or intense-use areas"—e.g., Banff, Jasper, etc. Per cent of park area—1.

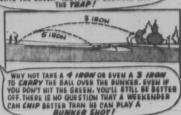

Buchanan states that, "Before implementing any zoning policy, and before making any major developments in new parks or changes to existing parks, we are opening the door to everyone for their views and recommendations."

Richard 'Very Sorry' and Would Welcome MacNeil Back

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'll be very disappointed if Al MacNeil is not my coach when we go to camp this fall . . . I mean that.'

Those were the remorseful words Wednesday of Henri

After the Habs were defeated 2-0 by Chicago Black Hawks in the fifth game of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup series, Henri told some French-language re-porters that MacNeil was an "incompetent coach,, the worst coach I had ever played for."

And now he's sorry, very sorry, "Let me say, for once and for all, exactly what I meant and what I believe," Richard said.

Worst coach . . , incompetent, I said that, right? I never

"Til never change my mind about that game. It was a terrible coaching job. That was one game, I've had terrible game but one game doesn't condemn a man."

Richard went on to say that MacNeil was exactly the opposite of incompetent.

"He's a rookie so he makes mistakes just like I did when I was a rookie," he said.
"When he was bad I said so. When I've been bad, they've said so. Well, maybe not all the time. That's why I should e said nothing."

Richard tendered his apologetic-sounding views after Montrealers by the thousands turned out to honor the cham pions during a parade that literally became a more scene.

On St. Catherine Street, four-lanes wide, enthusiastic wellwishers stood up to 20 deep and closed in on the convertibles carrying the hockey players to shake their hands and shout

The motorcade moved at a snail's pace in 85-degree

The parade was Montreal's thank-you to the team which brought home the Stanley Cup, symbol of National Hockey League supremecy by edging Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, Tuesday night.

A police motorcycle escort led the parade and forced the spectators back, but the crowds surged forward again around the vehicles led by a convertible carrying the Stanley Cup.

Jean Beliveau, the team captain who is rumored to be about to retire after 18 NHL seasons, was a star attraction and the crowds crushed around his auto, shaking his hand or

"Thank you, thank you," Beliveau kept repeating: "Merci,

Some youngsters pulled off the players' name cards tied to the sides of the convertibles.

"Boy, have I got a souvenir," one small boy shouted.

At Phillips Square, about half-way through the parade

route which led from the Forum in west-end midtown to city hall near the financial district, employees of a department store showered confetti and flowers on the players.

From a bank, 50-foot streamers flapped in the wind, hailing the champions. Mini-skirts and hot pants in the erowds added to the color.

Motorists abandoned their cars in traffic jams and joined

Mayor Jean Drapeau greeted the players at city hall. He had announced the parade just hours after the Canadiens won the best-of-seven-final playoff series in Chicago.

Offical congratulations also came from Quebec City and Ottawa. Premier Robert Bourassa sent a telegram of congratulations to Beliveau, and in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp brought on applause from all quarters when he welcomed "the great victory of the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup."

It's a curious thing, but the guy who put the knock on the coach, now turns out to be the hero of the piece. One of them. Because now he has made the coach a celebrity as well.

Last week, Henri Richard of the Montreal Canadiens was perhaps the most resented star outside of the province of Quebec. In a moment of pique, he had labelled his coach, Al MacNeil as "Incompetent — the worst he had ever played

Tuesday night, Richard threw two goals at Chicago Black Hawks as the Canadiens won their 10th Stanley Cup in the last 15 years. Because of those two goals, MacNeil, a rookie coach, had won hockey's biggest prize in his first year behind overtones of final victory won't let it come to the surface.

Besides, there was another central figure in the Montreal win over Chicago. Ken Dryden, that giant rookie goalkeeper is generally credited with being the difference between the is generally credited with being the difference between the two teams. Certainly he was against Boston, and he was superb again on Tuesday in Chicago.

But there is never a quiet crisis insofar as hockey is concerned in Montreal. And the Richard-MacNeil confrontation is no exception. This time, however the emotional impact of Richard's charges reached far beyond the bounds of nationalism. People across the country started taking sides, and asking questions. and asking questions.

Hadn't MacNeil taken over in mid season from a reluctant Claude Ruel? Hadn't the Canadiens just as suddenly started to jell? Hadn't the Canadiens the second best record, behind Boston, in the last half of the season? Hadn't MacNeil behind Boston, in the last half of the season? Hadn't MacNeil made the decision to use Dryden, a rookie, against the greatest. scoring team in hockey? Hadn't Dryden justified MacNeil's faith in him? Hadn't the Canadiens beaten Boston? And why should Richard, regardless of his intentions, put what appeared to be a bum'rap on a good guy?

True, MacNeil was only considered a stop-gap replacement when Ruel, who never once wanted the job, got out. After all, this wasn't a position for an Anglo-type. Otherwise, Floyd 'Busher' Curry would have gotten it when Toe Blake retired. Curry was a 10-year Montreal veteran, and a proven coach in the American League. But he lacked one credential. He wasn't French. Enter Ruel, a junior credential. He wasn't French. Enter Ruel, a junior development man. And a good one. He was appointed to a position he didn't relish.

And if Ruel won a Stanley Cup for Montreal, in spite of himself, in 1969, that's the very same charge that may be laid on MacNeil today. Because there always is a built-in excuse at management level. If the club loses, the coach is at fault. If it wins . . . well, that's the idea isn't it?

Actually, there is little a coach can do once the team steps on the ice. He can't put the puck in the net. But if teams didn't need coaches, the owners wouldn't hire them. And if MacNell isn't liked, which appears possible, why should he care? He wasn't hired to win a popularity contest. Besides, last year, the Canadiens didn't even make the

was predicting that, win or lose, MacNeill was long gone.
Richard had put the kiss of death on his boss.

MacNeil, for his part, put it down to playoff excitement and tension. "Some people are more highly strung than others" he said.

After the series, Richard was apologetic. He was man enough to say he shouldn't have said what he did. But if he was prising above his label as a malcontent, he also had stimulated his club. He lit whatever fuse needed lighting. And then he scored those two vital goals - the tying and the MIAMI (UPI) — The owners of Canonero II, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, will meet here today with possible buyers of the horse, but Jack Hofher, secretary of Venezuela Stud Inc., said an actual sale is unlikely now.

Hofher said Venezuela Stud Inc., a U.S. corporation based in Miami whose principal business is importing Latin American horses, simply was acting as agent in bringing together Edro Baptista and Edgar Caibett, the Venezuela owners of the Kentucky-bred Canonero II, and the would-be purchasing syndicate represented by trainer Bub Lepman.

"There is going to be a meeting tomorrow with discussion of the possibility of sale," Hofher said. "I don't anticipate any finalization of it tomorrow. It's just in the talking stages. I don't think the man (Baptista) has made up his mind to sell the horse yet. He has agreed to listen to an offer."

Continued concern and presure by sportsmen over the annual closures of portions of streams to all angling in order to protect spawning runs of salmon has finally precipitated a precedent on one up-Island river.

Through the initiative and efforts of area fisheries officer Bill Webber the annual closure of the Courtenay River to all angling now permits fly fishing from the shingle mill upstream to the confluence of the Puntledge and the Tsolum

In the past these closures have effectively eliminated a major sports fishery for sea-run cutthroat trout at a peak angling period coinciding with the salmon runs.

Permitting fly angling instead of a complete closure is a precedent for the federal department of fisheries and one which hopefully will be followed by other similar regulations on other streams which also have a season full closure. Let us hope that it will also precipitate similar regulations by the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

No specific tackle definition has been defined other than conventional fly fishing tackle. To all anglers this should be sufficient. Concern has been expressed by Webber for the very limited spring chinook population which uses the Courtenay River and the sincere hope that this angling opportunity will not be abused.

. * * * A recent release from Dr. James Hatter, director of the fish and wildlife branch, states that, "People adopting young wildlife this spring may find themselves liable to prosecution for illegal possession under the Wildlife Act."

This "hands-off" newly born and young wildlife policy is a result of increasing" sadoption" by well-meaning individuals who mistakenly believe these young seemingly helpless creatures to be abandoned. This is not so for the mother is always nearby and will return if the young animals are not

"They are fine to watch," states Hatter, "BUT PLEASE, do yourself and wildlife a favor, and don't touch them. * * *

The May issue of "Western Fish and Game" magazine now available on newsstands, has two excellent articles of real interest to Vancouver Island sportsmen. Dean Dixon's article, "Vancouver Island's Disappearing Elk," gives a complete and obviously well-researched history of the Roosevelt elk on the Island. His concluding prediction of future elk hunting on a permit basis is one management tool which unfortunately the fish and wildlife branch has been reluctant to provide in the 1971 blanket closure to Island elk

Vancouver Island's regional wildlife biologist, Ian Smith, has an article on "Know How: deer vs. hunter," which provides a wealth of information for the hunter on deer populations. Drawing upon research in the Northwest Bay area north of Nanaimo, he cites many examples of the whys of Vancouver Island deer regulations.

"Every litter bit hurts," or "Where litter lies—beauty-dies," the slogan for Outdoors Unlittered, a concerned B.C. citizens' organization founded in Victoria, could certainly be applied to our national parks. Last summer litter clean-up alone cost the taxpayers over $2 million.

Concern expressed by the organization points out the human fallibility to the litter problem. "It's the first piece of litter in an area that has the worst effect, for one piece of

New pressures by an "awakened, conservation-conscious public," to quote J. J. Buchanan, MP and parliamentary secretary to the Honorable Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, has given rise to a new zoning policy for all of Canada's national parks. Five classes, as listed below, have been suggested, particularly as the "national parks are seen as non-renewable resources, treasures to be carefully guarded."

Class 1. "Special Areas"—Vehicles are not permitted. In some sections there will be no visible access, to protect either features. Per cent of park area—30-40.

Class 5. "Townsite or intense-use areas"—e.g., Banff, Jasper, etc. Per cent of park area—1.

BALTIMORE (Reuter) - Humorist Ogden Nash, who died at Johns Hopkins Hospital Wednesday at the age of 68, was mourned today by lovers of limericks, outrageous rhymes, children's books, musicals and witticisms — all Nash's stock

The man best known for his terse but funny poetry had been treated for stomach and kidney allments at the hospital, where he received kidney treatment for a month following abdominal treatment surgery in March.

Nash published more than 30 volumes, mostly poetry, but including children's books. His work has appeared in most of the leading literary and humorous magazines in the English-speaking poems.

He decided long ago not to take up prose. "I think if I did that," he told a reporter, "I'd feel James Thurber and E: B. White looking over my shoulder. I made up my mind long ago that I'd rather be a great bad poet than a bad good poet."

Probably his most famous lines, were:

The night was wet and cool in York 75, 53; Phoenix 88, 56 British Columbia as the shower Washington 61, 50; Miami 82, 75 activity persisted in the Interior and showers spread back into 68, 57; Rome 84, 55; Paris 75, most of the south coast. Rain 61; London 68, 50; Berlin 70, 55; most of the south coast. Rainfall was heaviest at Abbotsford which had one inch of gain with this system but many south coast areas had over half an inch and in the Interior falls were generally a quarter of an inch or more. A ridge of high pressure building over coastal areas will result in a slow drying trend and skies will clear tonight in most areas. With the clearing comes the risk of frost in many parts of the Interior.

RAILWAY THROUGH A RUGGED LAND

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — When the final spike is driven home some time this summer, work crews of Turkey and Iran will have completed a key segment of a rail linking London and Tehran.

The 215-mile stretch crosses water and winds through some of the most rugged mountain country in the world. The area is inhabited by wild Kurdish tribesmen:

The project took seven years and ran up a bill of about $80 million. It was sponsored by the Central Treaty Organization — CENTO — to which Iran and Turkey belong, along with Pakistan, Britain and the United States.

Through CENTO, the United States contributed $10.5 project.

The project has connected the Turkish railway system, which ran as far as Lake Van, to the Iranian system's western terminal at Sharafkhaneh. It has been hailed as a brilliant engineering feat:

In order to bypass the steep mountains flanking Lake Van, Turkish engineers built a rail ferry from Tatvan at the western end of the lake to Van on the eastern shore.

The scouts will camp on the slopes of Mount Fuji, just outside Tokyo. As well as participating in scouting activities, they will tour Japan.

The total cost of the Japan trip is $800 per scout, said Bob Muir, field executive of the scouts here.

Some scout groups have participated in fund-raising campaigns to help the boys meet expenses.

And law professor Desmond Morton of the University of To-ronto, who played a central role in ending the April 14-18 rebelin ending the April 14-18 rebei-tion, has unleashed several broadsides against Mr. Goyer and his refusal to order a public inquiry into the disturbances.

However, it is doubtful that Mr. Goyer, in his toughest fight since assuming the usually in-conspicuous solicitor-general's lent to either demand.

About 500 prisoners were transferred out of Kingston to Millhayen and other institutions after the riot, which resulted in the deaths of two convicts and 10 others injured in beatings ad ministered by fellow prisoners.

BEATINGS REPORTED

Reports have filtered out of Millhaven and into the Com-mons of brutal beatings administered by guards to prisoners at Millhaven in reprisal for the six guards that were held hos-tage during the Kingston rebel-lion. The guards were released

As the situation stands now, a three-man commission of inquiry begins in-camera hearings on the rebellion June 7—without the public, without the news media, though Mr. Goyer may release its recommendations.

No charges have been laid yet in the deaths of convicts Brian Ensor, 26, found dead in the prison, and Bertram H. Take U.S. To Court, Nader Urges ada should challenge the United States before the World Court and international tribunals on the pollution that spills over into this country from the U.S., Ralph Nader told more than 1,000 persons here Wednesday night.

Mr. Nader, speaking at a meeting of the University of British Columbia's Alumni Association, said Canada has an "exquisite" opportunity to generate "a common interna-tional law controlling these acts and contamination against mankind" and to de-velop international institutions "that will begin to exercise authority in the control of such international pollution."

"Along the Canada-United States border there's obvi-ously more pollution going toward Canada than from Canada to the States," he 'I think it's time to begin developing a very healthy adversary relationship with the States in a legal context."

Mr. Nader, an American consumer affairs advocate, said if Canadians – needed additional content of the conte additional stimulation to do "will be forthcoming in AEC (Atomic Energy Commission) tests in the Aleutians, in the Alaska pipe-line and oil tanker sequence" and in the increasing pres-sures that will spill over into Canada as a result of the U.S. "lack of ability to toilet train ourselves in a civilized fa-

MOSCOW Reuter, The Soviet Union and Canada Wed-nesday signed an agreement calling for mutual considera-tion on vital foreign affairs,

Following is the text of the protocol signed by Prime Min-ister Trudeau and Soviet Pre-mier Alexei Kosygin:

Inspired by a desire to develop and strengthen rela-tions of friendship, good-neighborliness and mutual confidence between the two countries,

Expressing a desire to co-operation in the interests of maintaining international peace and security in accordance with the purposes and principles of the charter of the United Nations, and conscious of the responsibilities of Canada and the Soviet Union as members of the United Nations to promote the preservation of peace,

Believing that Canada and the Soviet Union can contribute toward the above goals by acting in a spirit of co-operation, mutual respect and reciprocal benefit,

Russians Launch Mars Shot

From AP-Reuter

MOSCOW The Soviet MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced Wednesday it has launched a space shot toward Mars and expects it to reach the planet next Novem-

Named Mars-2 and described as an automatic interplanetary station, the probe was launched Wednesday at 9:23 a.m. Victoria time.

A Moscow radio announce-ment said the station weighs more than four tons and will cover a distance of about 292 million miles to reach the vicinity of Mars.

The Soviet Union's first station aimed at Mars was. Mars-1 launched in Novem-ber, 1962. Radio contact was lost with it the following May; a month before it was scheduled to reach the planet.

Mars-2 is far larger and shows the development in Soviet space technique in the nine years since the Mars-1

The main purpose of Mars-2 is to "carry out a complex of scientific research about the planet Mars and the space surrounding it," Tass says.

Meanwhile, the U.S. space agency announced Wednesday a new postponement until May 23 in the launch of a Mariner unmanned spacecraft toward Mars while scientists continue to investigate the failure of an identical mission May 8.

Chest Changing Says President

Community Chest policy always is under review, but changes cannot come rapidly, Allan Cox, Chest president Service presented to the Chest in February which criticized several Chest policies.

Cox said he had invited all 25 agencies to submit briefs or other written comments to each other and the Chest's board of directors to facilitate policy talks between the agencies and the board this spring.

Two meetings have been held since March. Cox said not all the agencies agree with the Silver Threads Service.

The brief charged that the Chest has a "monolith bureaucratic" image and is too concerned with money at the expense of interest in promoting the work of the agencies. Other issues concerned budgeting, communication and public

8 Cax said the Chest is "basically a deficit-financing organization." By this he meant the Chest meets the difference in agency budgets between the money they can aise from grants and government sources and the money

He said the Chest is changing, and cited the B.C. Borstal Association and the Columbia Coast Mission as two agencies which are not getting grants this year.

The B.C. Borstal Association is being Chest at the end of this year, Cox also said the Chest dropped the Christmas Bureau earlier this year.

At the same time, an application for membership from the Native Friendship Centre is being considered, Cox said.

"We may not change as rapidly as some people may like.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Bewildered Fiancee

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a man who may be confined to a wheelchair for the rest of his life. I am in love with John (I think) but I have so many doubts. I have always dreamed of a lovely wedding, and I love children, and have always pictured family outings with my children romping about with their mother and father. I have always loved skiing, swim-ming, tennis. How does a wife enjoy these sports with a husband in a wheelchair?

If I go through with my plans to marry John, how does a bride walk down the aisle to be met by her groom who is seated in a wheelchair, waiting for her? Even the matter of wedding pictures will be a problem. I realize will be a problem. I realize these sound like little things which should probably never bother me, but they do. Will my children feel cheated because their father won't be able to do things with them that their friends' fahers will be doing.

I am 20 years old, Abby, and should know my own mind, but I am frankly bewildered. Can you, or any of your experienced—readers, help me? Miserable In Maine.

DEAR MISERABLE: You have too many doubts, my dear. If you really loved John, you wouldn't be asking for someone to "sell" you on marrying him. You would be determined to marry him — no matter what, and you'd be so sold that no one could talk

DEAR ABBY: I have a sticky problem. I share an apartment with a young man from a foreign country. He is fatties desibere for graduate study. I Fat Fanny told him I was going out of town for the weekend and he asked me if he could have a friend stay with him in our apartment. I thought it was another fellow, since he is a married man and speaks so lovingly of his wife and child.

DEAR ACCOMPLICE: Tell your roommate what you have told me. And since your moral codes are not compatible with his, I think you'd both be happier with a change

DEAR ABBY: Why does everyone discriminate against fat people? I love to eat, and since I got this way eating in restaurants, I think the very least the restaurant owners can do is put in chairs that are reasonably comfortable for a fat person to sit on. When I have to sit for an hour and a half on a little dinky chair that not big enough for all of me, I'm sore the next day.

And while I'm complaining, I may as well mention booths that are so close to the table I can barely squeeze myself

Please print this. We fatties deserve a break.

Family Out As Source Of Values

"The question is whether the contemporary family isn't feeling a lot more pressure than it ever did.

"People tell me that of 25 babies in a hospital nursery, five, six or even seven in some countries, will have switched parents before they are six because of divorce or separation."

Dr. Rabinovitch said some of the strain began when people achieved a new free-dom and-did not have to be what their fathers or mothers

With that freedom came a tremendous anxiety. When we give ourselves this freedom, did we forget to add some-thing to the system? Do we know how to help young people to make these choices? Have we given them enough preparation to confront this

166—AND FEELING GREAT

MOSCOW (UPI) — The oldest man in the world, Shirali Mislimov, celebrated his 166th birthday Wednesday by sipping lemonade and undergoing a medical check, the news agency

The doctors found him in perfect health.

Mislimov, who lives and tends a garden in the mountain village of Bazavu in Azerbaijan, is claimed by the Soviets to be Tass said regional officials and some of Mislimov's 208 descendants arrived to wish him happy birthday. Before the celebration began, however, he performed his dawn chores in the orchard and garden he tends near his house.

"The centenarian drank only lemonade to toast his guests," Tass said.

'He has never used alcohol and has never smoked. He works in his orchard, and does carpentry work around the house," the official paper said.

Mislimov sees as the reason for his long life the work he has

The agency said Mislimov never has been ill in his life, although advancing age forced him to cut out horseback riding and other strenuous activities recently.

Doctors who examined him said his blood pressure was 130 over 80, and his pulse rate was 80 beats a minute — better than than of many men one-fourth his age.

Soviet medical authorities said the moderately-high altitude of the area where Mislimov lives may be one reason for his long life. There are 4,200 other Azerbaijanis who are older than 100. Tass said.

The report said Mislimov has left his mountain village only once, to visit the Azerbaijani capital of Baku. That, Tass said, was when he was 160

Deadhead Drive Slated for Lakes

A major program to mark and retrieve low-floating and deadhead logs in the Cowi-chan and Nitinat lakes has been launched by B.C. Forest been launched by B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

The program is part of a plan to ensure that waters in the vicinity of company oper-ations are safe as possible for the boating public, T. E. Burgess, vice-president, said

The company is setting up three distribution \cdot points where pleasure boaters may obtain "flag-a-snag" banners, and has established regular patrols to mark and move deadheads as well as loose floating logs to safe storage

SIGNS TO GO UP

The steel-spiked flags will be available at BCFP Cowi-chan-Nitinat Logging Division office and booming grounds at Caycuse and at the Cowichan Burgess said boaters spotting and marking the dead-heads and low floaters could assist speedy removal of such hazards by reporting their locations to the flag distribution centres.

He said signs will be posted at company-operated camp-grounds, picnic sites and boat launching sites advising users of the availability of the flags.

The company operates two campsites at Lake Cowichan

- one at Caycuse and the other on the north end of the lake. It also plans to establish a camp in the Nitinat area.

Burgess said the company is placing double sets of boom sticks around smaller logs to prevent escapes.

"We have also instituted measures to prevent loose bark at dumping grounds from getting into the water,"

Negligence Blamed For Man's Death

A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday the death of a 20-year-old Victoria man in a collision on the Malahat was caused by the criminally negligent driving of Douglas Ernest Genno, 39, of Cowichan Bay.

Genno was the driver of a car that collided with one in which Daniel Brian Bresenham, 339 St. James, was riding on the Trans-Canada Highway, north of Tunnel

Bresenham died early April 12 per cent. He said it is an 24 in St. Joseph's Hospital of offence to operate a motor brain injuries. The car he was in was driven by his mother, wontent exceeding .08 per Mrs. Marganet Bresenham

n summation said Genho had consumed six glasses of beer shortly before the crash and the collision occurred as he was trying to get in his lane after passing a car.

St. Jorre said he didn't accept Genno's statement that he wasn't affected by the six glasses.

"It was just a senseless bit of driving on his part."

The coroner also noted that Genno's blood-alcohol content

Cable Firms Battle Over Saltair Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two c a ble television operators took their dispute over rights to a section of Vancouver Island before the Canadian Radio-Television Commission Wednesday

Wednesday Ivan H. Hollway, president of Cowichan Valley TV Ltd., said he has wired up the Saltair region south of Ladysmith and has no intention of selling.

James H. Ritchie, president of L and C Cablevision Ltd., said he would never have launched his operation in Ladysmith if he had known Saltair would not be included. The two men were appearing on an application by Hollway for renewal of the Cowichan Valley licence for Duncan, North Cowichan and obtained licences from the federal transport department to wire up the Saltair region. The transport department was reponsible for cable operations before the CRTC vas established in 1968.

Ritchie said he understood the British Columbia Tele-phone Co. was to wire up Saltair for his operation. But he was told by B.C. Tel that ley.

"I think it would be fair to say there was not very strict supervision on transport department permits," said CRTC vice-president Harry to buy the Saltair system from Cowichan Valley but has been turned down. Hollway said his company has spent years building up the system in Saltair and he does not want to sell.

A CRTC decision on the renewal application will be handed down later.

Continue to Work With Nature

By HILDA BEASTALL

Vegetable garden plots are sprouting seeds by the Vegetable garden plots are sprouting seeds by the thousands these days adding excitement to the lives of new and young gardeners who have been awaiting results.

These first gardens may have been put in by any gardener between the ages of 6 and 69. I don't remember coming across a novice gardener who was over 70. Difficulties and problems arise with the seedlings. Does nature take care of them. from now on? Do I have to do anything? What do I do pow?

anything? What do I do now?

These are the questions. The overall answer is you must continue to work with nature; and she will keep you busy right up to the happy day you eat the food you have helped to grow.

have helped to grow.

First, most kinds of seedlings will need to be thinned. These are primarily root vegetables—carrots, beets, radishes, onlons, and later, the turnips (the latter are not sown until mid June). Each seedling must have space to grow below ground and above. It's important to have air and sunlight circulate through the foliage so that the roots may expand to size.

Pull out seedlings, leaving a space of about half an inch.

Pull out seedlings, leaving a space of about half an inch between those remaining. If you sowed thinly as advised, this first thinning may not be necessary. Press the soil carefully with the fingers around the remaining seedlings.

Later thinnings to one inch, and again to two inches will result in useable roots. Beets especially entail no loss whatever once the leaves are a couple of inches long. The whole plant can be cooked for five minutes or eaten raw.

Lettuce need thinning, too, the different kinds to various spacings. Here again, after the first thinning, all the pulled seedlings will be useful.

Summer spinach I don't thin until a first couple of dozen plants are four inches high. I dislike wasting any of this quick

All thinnings however small, should be taken away to the All thinnings however small, should be taken away to the compost heap, not left on the ground. Especially this applies to carrots. The fly of the carrot rust maggot is attracted by the odor of the carrot tops. Touch them as little as possible, and take the thinnings to the heap where the fly will described. (hopefully) be attracted harmlessly.

After thinning, the seedlings should be gently irrigated. A heavy jet of water will dislodge them, so turn on the tap for a slow trickle.

Make a tiny furrow with the edge of a lath or a pointed stick each side of a row. Into this, trickly water gently so the soil is not washed away. Go along the row three times, filling the inch-deep furrow as you go.

Two advantages result: the water temperature is raised to that of the soil as it seeps towards the seedling roots instead of being sprayed cold on the foliage; and the water will be gradually used over a period of several days.

Evaporation is far less from the surface of a small furrow than from the complete soil area of the whole width (and length) of the seedling row. Swinkling would have

CRYPTIC CROSSWORD

Every bridge player knows what a direct finesse for a king is, for this type of finesse is the most recurring play in the game. But not everyone is familiar with the "ruffing finesse" for a king, which type of situation also arises fairly frequently.

In today's deal, our South declarer was confronted with the issue of whether to take a direct finesse for a king, or to take a ruffing finesse instead. He correctly took the latter. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

After cashing the king and ace of diamonds, West shifted to the queen of clubs, South capturing the trick with his ace. The ace and king of trumps were then cashed, South, gathering in the adversely held pieces.

As is apparent, if declarer had now led his singleton spade and finessed dummy's queen, he would have gone down. East would have won this trick with the king, after which the defenders would have cashed two club tricks.

Thus declarer would have suffered a two - trick set. But declarer did not take this direct finesse, for he recognized that it was an inferior play. Even if the then be able to discard one of his losing clubs on dummy's ace of spades. However, this wouldn't help him at all, for he would still have two losing clubs in his hand. (Specifi-cally, suppose that the East and West spade holding had been interchanged. The direct finesse would now be successlosing two club tricks).

After drawing trumps, South led his singleton spade to dummy's ace. He next laid down the queen of spades, playing on the assumption (a 50-50 hope) that East possessed the king of spades. This was the ruffing finesse.

When East covered the queen with the king, South ruffed. It was now a routine matter to enter dummy via the trump queen, and to discard two of his clubs on the board's high jack and ten of spades. In the end, he conceded a club trick to the defenders.

Had East not covered the spade queen with the king, South would have discarded a club. Next would come the jack of spades, and again East would be trapped. As South played it, he was sure of making three spade tricks whenever East possessed the spade king.

Family Affair In Citizenship

By ROBIN BURGESS

The citizenship ceremony for new Canadians Wednesday was a family affair for the Van Wiltenburgs.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelis Van Wiltenburg and four of their seven children, Ed, 19; Mieke, 20; Jack, 17, and Eve, 16, all born in The Netherlands, became Canadian citizens among 30 from 14 different countries to receive their Canadian citizenship certificates at the ceremony at the Citizenship Court, 816 Govern-

"We always wanted to become citizens but just didn't get around to it before," said Mrs. Van Wiltenburg, who came to Canada with her husband and four children 14 years ago.

Chinese Store Safe as Houses

By PAT DUFOUR

How does a Caucasian feel running a store brimful of sayings by Chairman Mao Tse-tung and goods from mainland China in Victoria's Chinatown? Safe as houses, says Mrs. Evelyn Peaker.

She's run such a store on Government since she re-turned from a month-long visit to China in late 1966. Although she admits to being frustrated because she's unable to speak Chinese, she says, "I feel very safe around here. The Chinese are very reliable.' Between spasmodic interruptions by Chinese cus-tomers, Mrs. Peaker explains that any incidents and there aren't many are triggered by her own kind and herself.

"There's the odd one that snorts as they go by. And, most of the arguments in the store I usually start myself." Shortly after she joined the Canada-China Friendship As-sociaion, Mrs. Peaker was one of five delegates chosen to go to China for a month. The others were a student from the University of British Columbia, a Toronto lawyer, Toronto housewife and a brewery worker from Van-

Pakistan Needs More Than Faith

Mort Rosenblum of The Associated Press was in a group of correspondents admitted to East Pakistan after a fiveweek period in which foreign correspondents were officially barred. He wrote this summa-tion free of the censorship that prevails in Pakistan.

Two meetings have been held since March. Cox said not all the agencies agree with the Silver Threads Service.

The brief charged that the Chest has a "monolithic, bureaucratic" image and is too concerned with money at the expense of interest in promoting the work of the agencies. Other issues concerned budgeting, communication and public condition.

Cox said the Chest is "basically a deficit-financing organization." By this he meant the Chest meets the difference in agency budgets between the money they can raise from grants and government sources and the money

He said the Chest is changing, and cited the B.C. Borstal sociation and the Columbia Coast Mission as two agencies which are not getting grants this year.

The B.C. Borstal Association is being dropped from the Chest at the end of this year. Cox-also said the Chest dropped the Christmas Bureau earlier this year

At the same time, an application for membership from the Native Friendship Centre is being considered, Cox said.

"We may not change as rapidly as some people may like but we are reviewing our policies all the time wrote that a woman with menstrual troubles and hair on her face probably has something wrong with either an adrenal gland or an ovary. With special studies, a doctor may be able to tell where the trouble probably is, but sometimes what is wrong and where it is wrong can be determined only with an operation. Sometimes the woman suffers from what is called virilization, which means that in some ways she becomes more like a man.

Rarely, the woman has a "Cushing's syndrome," with a round face, a large abdomen with black scars on it, perhaps a high blood pressure, perhaps some sugar in her urine, and some mental disturbances, and a tiny tumor, perhaps in her adrenal glands (one over each kidney).

Sometimes there is a tiny tumor in the ovary which is producing male hormone, or there is what is called a "Stein-Leventhal syndrome." This is a disease in which the ovaries become abnormal and produce menstrual irregularities, infertility, hairiness, and overweight.

What makes the diagnosis difficult is that ovarian and adrenal and pituitary gland disease (the very important pituitary gland is at the base of the brain) can cause pretty much the same symptoms and signs. Sometimes then a measurement in the blood and urine of certain hormones and other chemicals can tell where the main disease is. A gynecologist with a good knowledge of endocrinology (the study of diseases due to abnormal glands of internal secretion) is the man most likely to help. A gland of internal secretion is so named because it p

PARIS (AP) Minister Heath and President Pompidou met today in an attempt- to revive the old British-French alliance in order that France will not again veto Britain's application to join the European Common Market: The success of their summit talks depended largely on the ability of the British and French leaders to align their policies toward the United States and West Germany. To win Pompidou's backing, Heath must convince his host that Britain's co-operation with the Americans and West Germans never would be at

France's expense,
Pompidou and Heath grouped their two-day talks

around three main themes:
—The sort of Europe they want: This takes in the role a united Western Europe should seek to play in the Middle East, Asia, Africa, toward the Communist powers and so on Communist powers and so on. It also includes the defence system Europeans should work toward, bearing in mind mounting pressures for reduc-tion in U.S.forces abroad.

-The state of the Brussels negotiations on British admis-sion to the Common Market: This means examining the remaining disagreements. A compromise is expected over the money Britain must contribute to the economic com munity's coffers, probably-seven per cent a year instead of the three per cent offered. It also means arguing about Britain's promisé to safeguard the economy of New Zealand, which would go broke if it were to lose its special access to the British market for its meat and dairy

-The political, cultural and economic effects of enlarging the Common Market. Pompidou and Heath both reflected the sunshine of the ence statements. The French president said British entry into the market is probable aithough he did not say when.

"And if they had asked me I would have said they could peddle their own papers."

Trude au described the Soviet-Canadian agreement as "extremely important and significant."

The document provides for regular consultations between the two countries on international issues as well as questions affecting bilateral Canadian-Soviet relations.

Trudeau said the agreement indicates that Canada still pursues its longstanding goal independence in foreign

The B.C. Federation of Labor, in a brief, has accused the government of applying the old adage "do as I say, not as I do.'

The brief criticized the government excluding itself from the human rights legislation as well as charitable, fraternal and religious organizations not run for profit and domestic workers.

Jack Sherlock, director of he B.C. Human Rights Branch, said today the govern ment's discriminatory advertising is legal because under the Interpretation Act legislation does not apply to the government unless this is stated.

"Therefore this problem arises so they can say what they like. They are not legally bound, only morally," he said.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — There was little room for further argument today about the American supersonic transport airliner following a 58-to-37 Senate vote to bury the Boeing project.

"I really think it is dead now," said the SST's arch-opponent, Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) after the late-night roll-call vote Wednesday.

Proxmire said the only way the United States could get back into the commercial supersonic field would be if there were positive proof that the SST would not pollute the air and if the plane were to be developed by private financing.

Greene Rejects Long-Term Energy Trading

MONTREAL (CP) - Energy Minister J. J. Greene told a group of American oilmen Wednesday that Canada intends to use its natural resources primarily for its own good and expects its trading partners to open their doors to more finished products manufactured in this country.

Mr, Greene told the spring meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's marketing division that foreign interest in Canada's resource industries has helped the country grow but long-term energy trading commitments with the U.S. which might have unpredictable results should be avoided.

Consequences Must Be Known

Mr. Greene emphasized that the government is not afraid of foreign investment which,

"Governments-both provincial and federal-have been accused of everything from the outright giveaway of our the offright giveaway of our birthright to allowing foreign domination of our resource industries to permitting the wholesale export of raw materials instead of developing further processing indus-tries at home.

Sometimes the criticism has been afforded the dignity of emanating from creditable pundits; for the most part at great deal of nonsense has great deal of nonsense has been uttered."

Despite such crificism, Mr. Greene affirmed that foreign investment has always been an important factor in Canada's growth. "There are many things we are not particularly happy about. But, we are not afraid of foreign investment . . . and if the citizens of other countries are ready to invest their money in Canada, if they are prepared to abide by our laws in doing so and to become good corporate citizens of Canada, then we are certainly

FISHERMEN SEEK ARMED GUARD

VANCOUVER (CP) - Homer Stevens, president of the Union, asked Ottawa Wednesday for armed protection of a Prince Rupert lishboat in retrieving its gear from waters near the B.C.-Alaska border.

Stevens, in a telegram to acting prime minister Mitchell Sharp and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, said: "Urge strongest possible action including use of Canadian protection and naval vessel to prevent foreign encroachment on Canadian sovereignty and territory."

His wire followed a reported chase Sunday by a U.S. coast guard cutter of the Anthony 4 to Prince Rupert from a point near the Alaska panhandle border with B.C. The Anthony 4 left an estimated $2,000 worth of fishing gear in the water when it fled the coast guard vessel under directions

The incident took place in an area within three miles of the border line but considered by Canada to be Canadian

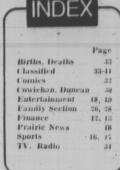

In Prince Rupert, skipper Jack Secord of the Anthony J said his gear is in about 240 feet of water, supported by floats and "if the ropes wear through I'll never get it back."

He said he and his seven-man crew will probably resum-

FOR WOMEN CREATING DISTURBANCE

Judge Urges Bullwhips on Bare Backsides

VANCOUVER (CP) - Provincial court judge Gordon Johnson suggested Wednesday that a few solid whacks across an unprotected backside with a bull whip would probably serve as an excellent deterrent for persons guilty of creating disturb-

Judge Johnson made the remark while sentencing five women who interrupted a fashion show in Hotel Vancouver and created a disturbance at the Vancouver Public Library last March

Jane McDermott and Sydney Frymiere, both 22, were each fined $75 for causing a disturbance in the public rooms at Hotel Vancouver by shouting, screaming and swearing. They were given one month to pay the fine. *

The two women and three companions Hannriette Avery, 30, Donna Liberson, 25, and Lynn Rusheinski, 19, were given suspended sentences and placed on probation to keep the peace for two years on charges of creating a disturbance in the library by shouting, screaming

They had been convicted on the charges last Friday

"If you ever come before this court again, I intend to deal severely with you." Judge Johnson told the five women.

"I believe three good cracks across an unprotected backside with a bull whip would probably be an excellent deterrent.

Earlier, witnesses testified that McDermott-carrying a bull whip at the time of the disturbances.

The charges arose from the March 10 fashion show that was broken up by six women dressed in garish costumes and wearing heavy white makeup on their faces.
